The Story of "The New Jersey Bitch"

One of our best pizza additions!
Find it on page 3

Named after a particularly colorful customer who lost his mind (and vocabulary) over our new phone system. This spicy number is an homage to his now-infamous voicemail meltdown — where he repeatedly called our owner a "New Jersey Bitch" for daring to use phone automation in Fort Lupton. We thought, "You know what? Let's make her a pizza."

Scan the QR code to hear the actual voicemail that inspired it all.

Rated R: Adult language.

Definitely not Fort Lupton nice.
Definitely New Jersey delicious.

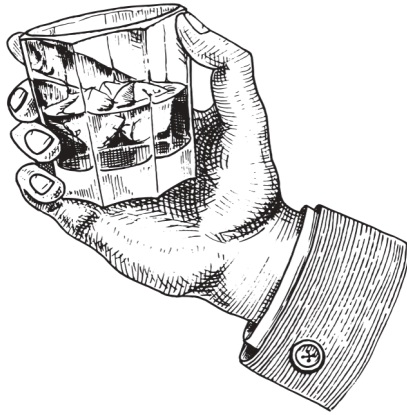

ROARING GOOD TIMES IN THE SPEAKEASY

Step back in time and enjoy a unique experience only our speakeasy can offer. This 1920's inspired hidden gem can be found below our eatery.

Once inside, you'll find delicious food, handcrafted cocktails, live music, and rotating events in a cozy, intimate setting — as long as you're over 18, of course!

WHISKEY? HOW NEAT!

Wholly Stromboli owners and whiskey connoisseurs, Melissa and Eric Rickman travel the world in search of the best restaurant offerings. It's a tough job, but somebody's got to do it! Peep our bar menu and try something new!

THE ST. JOHN

Serving up a slice of history! Our building was originally constructed in 1889 and was the home of the J.R. Twombly Mercantile. Unfortunately, it burned down on St.Patty’s Day 1912 at 3 am. Later, it was resurrected by the owner at the time, Edgar St. John, which is why it’s called the St. John Building today!

The Doppio Frico

When I set out to create the perfect Detroit-style pizza for Wholly Stromboli, Eric — our resident frico connoisseur — had one request: more of those crispy, cheesy edges and no soggy center! So, I worked with LloydPans to create a custom pan that gives you exactly that — crispy, caramelized cheese on ALL sides, with plenty of delicious toppings in every bite. The result? Doppio Frico. I hope you enjoy eating it as much as I enjoyed creating it for you!
